PREFACE

Conservation of our National and Native Resources

One of the greatest movements of recent times in America was given vitality and force under the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt. Before we can expect reality to follow idealism and theoretical dreams we must stimulate and inculcate realization among our people of what constitutes our resources. It is with this fact in our minds that we have endeavored to tabulate and present in a logical and comprehensive manner certain phases of the resources of the State of Ohio, with especial emphasis upon the natural scenic and the historic features.

After our much motored and widely travelled citizens realize our great heritage they will seek and find satisfactory recreation and inspiration close at hand. This will lead to Regional Planning, when the various more or less isolated units are made accessible and connected by parks, parkways or main thoroughfares. Paralleling State Planning, we should have National Planning. How can we expect to develop and retain and enjoy our great resources as a nation if we do not have a National Interstate Plan for the linking together of our park systems, our great historic and recreational grounds, and our industrial and agricultural areas throughout the entire continent?

The compilers and publishers of this little map hope this effort may lead to other more complete editions and at the same time cultivate and encourage a better, truer, and deeper realization of the many-sided and splendid resources of the Buckeye state.

Acknowledgment

The cooperation and assistance of the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society through Director W. C. Mills and C. B. Galbreath in checking and adding historical data should give the map the standing of high authority. The untiring encouragement of E. S. Drake was largely responsible for reviving the enterprise after the second year war interval.

I wish to express my appreciation to H. H. Kennedy and R. J. Kinkel for much laborious and tedious work in collecting information for the map in the early days of the enterprise, as well as to scores of patriotic citizens throughout the state who sent to us suggestions and additional material.

To the Extension Service of the College of Agriculture, through its director, H. C. Ramsower, I am indebted for making it possible to collect the data and make and print the map appended herein. I especially wish to thank J. E. McClintock for his assistance in arranging the data and proof-reading this booklet.

Future Editions

Corrections and additional information are requested, and should be forwarded to the Archaeological and Historical Society, Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

The first edition of "Scenic and Historic Ohio," numbering 5,000 copies, was promptly exhausted and about that number of additional requests have been received.

At the suggestion of persons who received a copy, a number of points of interest have been added and other features have been considerably extended. The general plan of the first edition remains unchanged.

The description accompanying the names of counties as "Agricultural and Industrial" is something of a misnomer. Agriculture is one of the "leading industries" of the state and its counties. A better heading would probably be "Agriculture and Other Industries." This should be the interpretation of the former designation which is here retained. In the descriptive matter chief attention is given to agriculture, due to the fact that the publication originated with the Agricultural College of the Ohio State University.

The materials for this publication have been gleaned from official and other published sources. No statement has been made without authority. Some errors in the previous editions have been corrected and care has been taken to make this edition, within its limited scope, as accurate as possible. It is too much to expect, however, that it should be absolutely free from inaccuracies. It must be remembered, too, that the rank of the counties in agricultural and mineral production may change from year to year. The county that is first in the production of corn this year may be second or third next year, etc. The latest available statistics have been used. A new map has been added showing the condition of the highways practically to the date of issue of this edition.

For chief assistance in the preparation of this edition acknowledgment is made to Miss Alice S. Davis, cataloger in the library of the Ohio State Archæological and Historical Society.

"Scenic and Historic Ohio" will be sent to anyone on receipt of a two-cent postage stamp. This second edition is respectfully submitted in the hope that it may continue to find a popular reception.

C. B. GALBREATH, Secretary,
Ohio State Archæological and Historical Society.

The home of Levi Coffin, reputed president of the Underground R. R., once stood where Woodward High School is now. In addition to the presidents, this county has furnished thirteen of our governors, viz., Looker, Brown, Bebb, Chase, Dennison, Anderson, J. D. Cox, Noyes, Young, Bishop, Hoadly, Harmon and Foraker though but three were born here, viz., Bebb on Dry Fork of Whitewater, Morgan township, 1802, Dennison, Cincinnati, 1815, and Harmon, Newton, 1846. The first newspaper in Ohio, issued 1793, in Cincinnati, was the "Centinel of the Northwest Territory"; Ohio's first book was printed here, 1796, by the editor of the "Centinel" who called it "Maxwell's Code"; the second school house built in Ohio was at Columbia five miles east of Cincinnati; school was held in it 1790. The first library in Hamilton county, the second in Ohio, and the first public library in Northwest Territory, was opened in Cincinnati, 1802; the first bank in Ohio in Cincinnati, 1803. According to Dr. G. W. Wright of Oberlin, "The most entrancing view in the state is seen from the site of old Ft. Miami, below North Bend." Of the innumerable men and women of note born here, we can mention only Donn Piatt, politician, journalist, born 1819; Stanley Matthews, soldier, statesman, 1824; George H. Pendleton, statesman, ambassador, first advocate of Civil Service Reform, 1825; David Swing, "poet-preacher," 1830; A. T. Goshorn, Director-general Centennial Exposition in 1876, 1833; Gen. Henry M. Cist, soldier, author, 1839; Gov. Judson Harmon, Newton, 1846; D. J. Ryan, lawyer, author, 1855; M. Louise McLaughlin, artist, author; Emerson Venable, editor, author, 1875.

ROSS — Agricultural and Industrial

First settled at Manchester, 1791, organized 1798, and named for James Ross of Pa. Third from largest county, 646 square miles. County seat, Chillicothe, "The Old Town Beautiful," laid out 1796, capital of Ohio, 1803-1810, 1812-1816; the first constitutional convention met here, 1802. "The drives around Chillicothe present scenery of unsurpassed beauty." Ohio's first centennial celebration occurred here in 1903. The county contained 450 prehistoric sites, including 370 mounds, 49 of the inclosure class. It leads in the number of large farms (1,000 or more acres); ranks second in area in farms; fourth largest average acreage devoted to farms; seventh in value of goats; eighth in corn production; ninth in wheat; is noted for apples and canning crops. Leading industries—agricultural implements, cigars, coal, engines, furniture, iron, paper, R. R. cars, shoes, tile and cement. Four governors are buried in Grandview Cemetery, viz., Tiffin, Worthington, McArthur and Allen. Among the famous people born in or near Chillicothe are: Rufus King, 1817; "Martha Finley," author of the "Elsie" books, 1828; Mrs. Lucy Webb Hayes and Gen. Joshua W. Sill, 1831; Gen. Thos. M. Anderson, 1836; H. H. Bennett, author, 1863; John Bennett, author, 1865; Burton E. Stevenson, librarian, author, 1872; W. A. Ireland, cartoonist, 1880 and Dard Hunter, the world's only "one-man" book-producer, who built his own paper mill, made the type and paper, writes his books, prints, binds and illustrates them, and (incidentally) sells them at the highest price given for modern books anywhere in the world.

An Interesting Institution to Visit

In touring central Ohio do not fail to stop at the Museum and Library Building of the Ohio State Archæological and Historical Society, in Columbus. It is situated on the Ohio State University Grounds at the east or High Street entrance. It contains thousands of interesting historic relics and the best collection of Mound Builder remains in the Mississippi Valley. The new Memorial Wing to the building is now nearing completion.

Membership in the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society

Do you wish to learn more about the archæology and history of Ohio? If so, become a member of the Ohio State Archæological and Historical Society. This will cost you only $2.00 a year and entitle you to receive the QUARTERLY magazine published by the Society.

For further information address Ohio State Archæological and Historical Society, Ohio State University Grounds, Columbus, Ohio.

ERRATA

The preceding pages are the work of many hands, which explains in part the errors here noted:

Belmont County, page 7.

In the last line on this page, "Secretary of War under Lincoln" should read, "Assistant Secretary of War under Lincoln."

Champaign County, page 9.

Number 4 of the tabulated items should be omitted. "Carysville Lake" has been drained.

Ohio Caverns are in the northeast corner of Salem Township, Champaign County, 3 miles southeast of West Liberty, Logan County.

To number 2 in tabulated items should be added "now Junior College."

In number 2 of tabulated items the word "Bethel" should be substituted for "Batavia". Grant lived for a time in Bethel but never in Batavia. The map key, D-12, should be changed to D-13.

Columbiana County, page 12.

In line thirteen from the top of the page occurs an error. William Windom was born in Belmont County.

Darke County, page 15.

In number 2 of tabulated items the terms of the Greenville Treaty are misstated. Following the date, "August 3, 1795," the terms should be stated as follows: "by which the title to the lands south of the Greenville Treaty line and east of the Tuscarawas and Cuyahoga Rivers were transferred to the United States by the federated Indian tribes."

Logan County, page 33.

Tabulated items numbers 1 and 8 should be omitted. "Mt. Tabor Cave" was the former name of what is now known as "Ohio Caverns", and these scenic attractions are in Champaign County.

Tabulated item number 2 should be changed. What was formerly known as "Unangst Cave" is now known as "Zane Caverns".

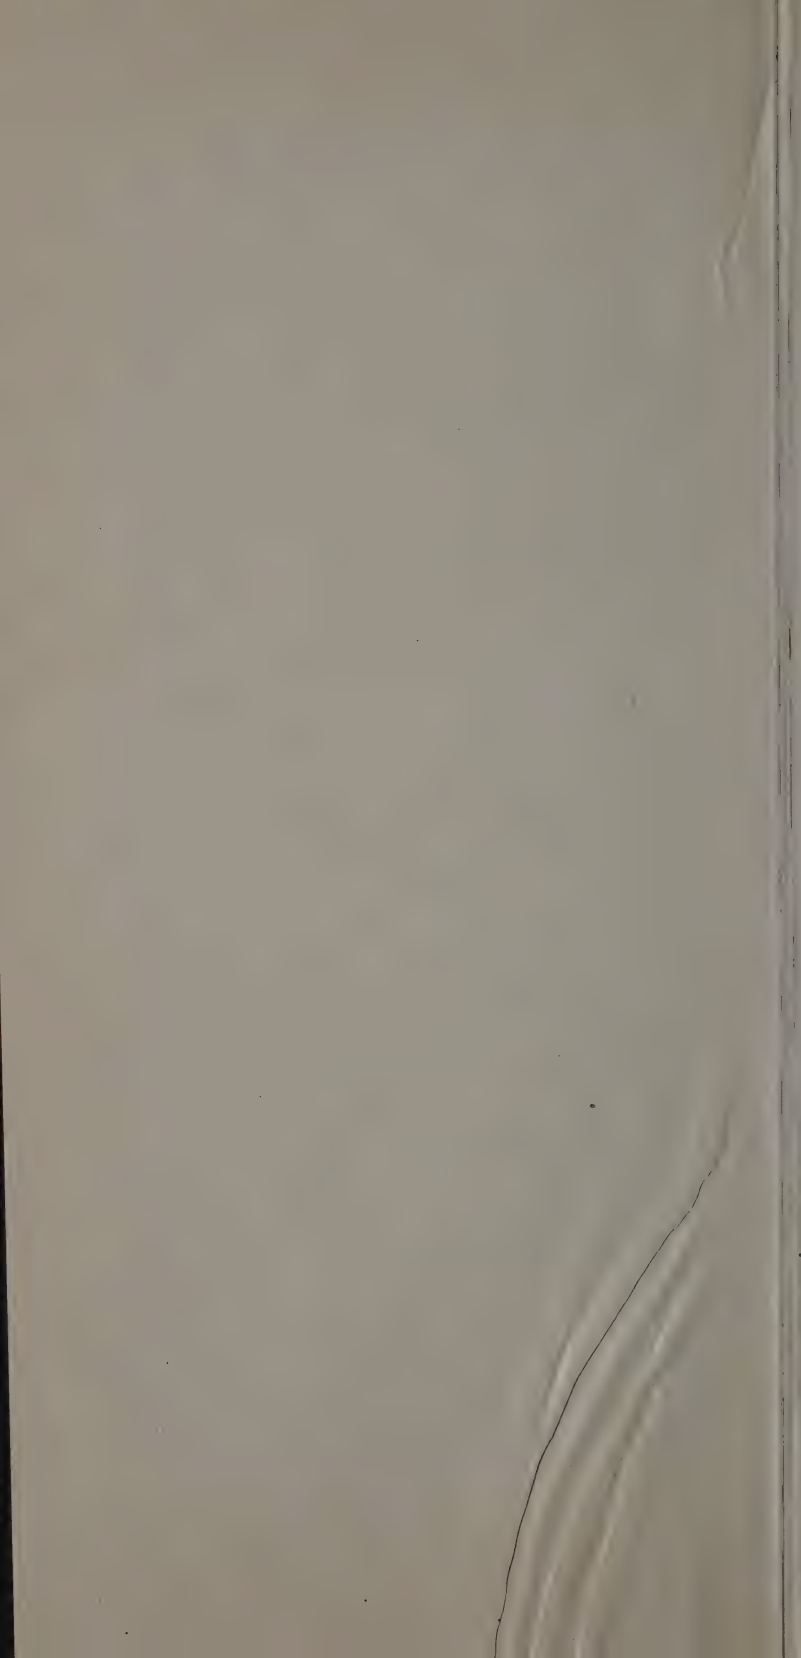

Trumbull County, page 48.

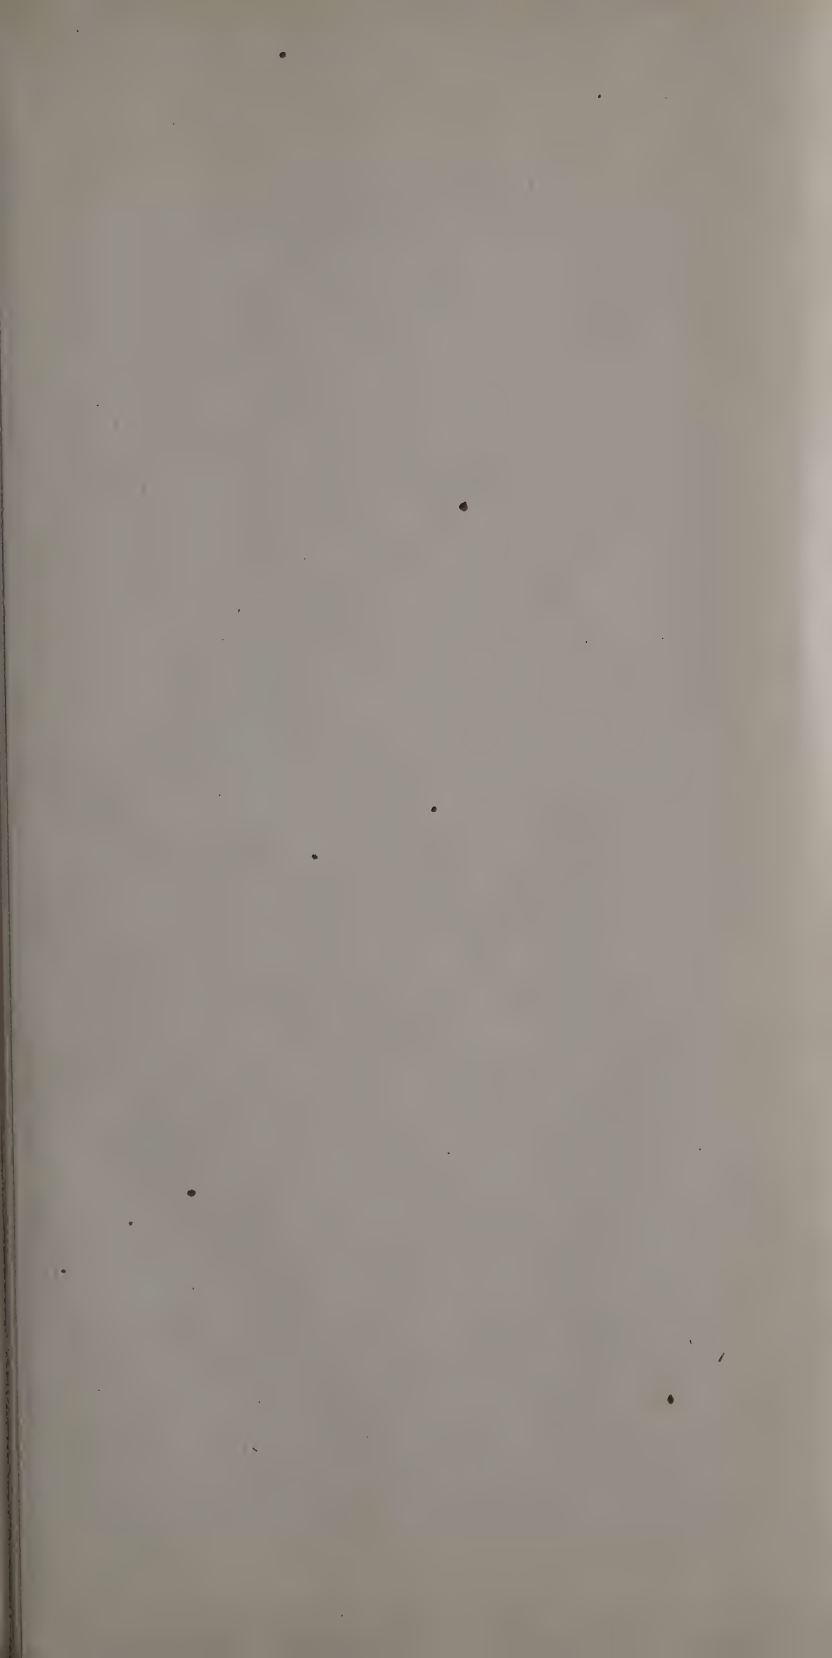

Tabulated item number 1, following the map key, should read, "Born in Niles, 1843. 25th President U. S. House in which he was born no longer standing. Memorial erected largely through the initiative of Joseph G. Butler, Jr., dedicated in 1915."

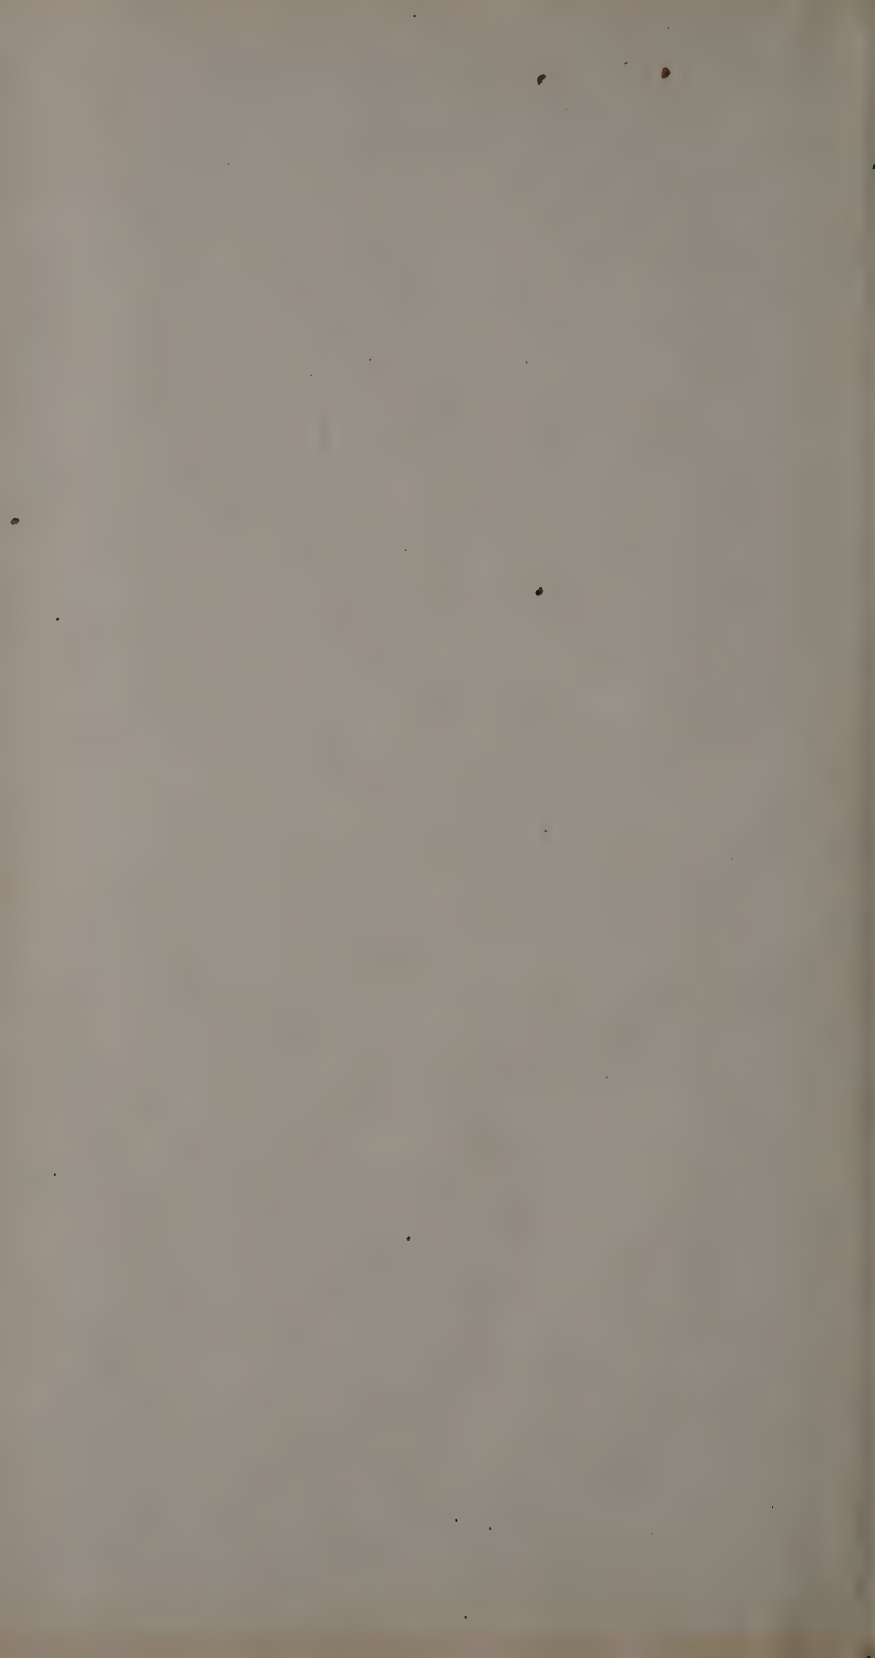

Union County, page 49.

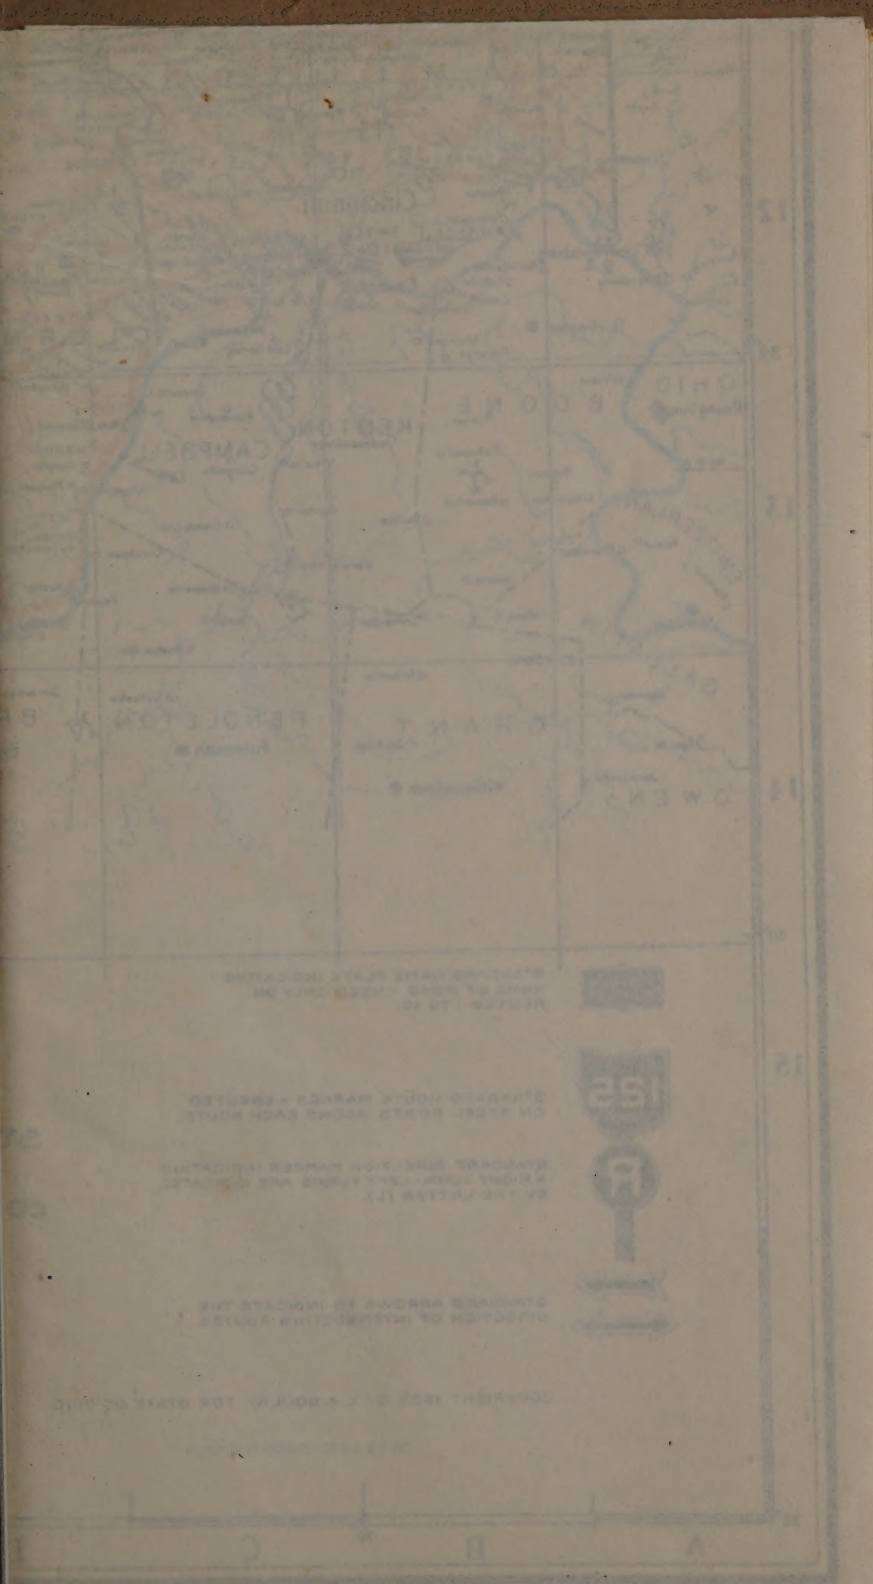

Tabulated item number 1 should be omitted. It is a name given to the place because of the number of wives and widows of soldiers and sailors who live in the village and the vicinity. There is no institution here.

The industrial items were all taken from recent publications supposed to be authentic, but some of them, formerly correct, are not true today. —in other words, are out of date.
